

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

This work can truly be called a team endeavor, for its completion would not have been possible without the often strenuous efforts of workers from many disciplines. We are grateful to Diana L. Lipscomb, Associate Professor of Biological Sciences, George Washington University, for supervising the senior author's initial studies. Sincere thanks are also due Wayne N. Mathis, Curator, Department of Entomology, Smithsonian Institution, for instruction in phylogenetic analysis, and Henry C. Merchant, Associate Professor of Biological Sciences, George Washington University, for many hours of stimulating dialectics.

Special appreciation is extended to Donald T. ("Ted") Crump, Head, Translation Unit, Division of Research Services, National Institutes of Health, for rendering so many vital Russian papers into unambiguous English. Thanks also to Ludmila N. Kassianoff, Department of Entomology, Smithsonian Institution, for painstakingly deciphering the labels on loaned Russian specimens, as well as the letters of their senders.

For a different kind of translation, that of converting our Polaroid negatives to immaculate glossy prints, we are much indebted to Diane L. Nordeck and Harold E. ("Doc") Dougherty, Photographers, Office of Printing and Photographic Services, Smithsonian Institution.