Class Trematoda
Subclass Aspidogastrea Faust &amp; Tang, 1936
Order Aspidogastrida Dollfus, 1958
Family Aspidogastridae Poche, 1907
Genus Lobatostoma Eckmann, 1932
Lobatostoma anisotremum Oliva & Carvajal, 1984*	Anisotremus scapularis (Tschudi, 1846) (Actinopterygii: Haemulidae)	Ad	Intestine	off Antofagasta (II)	Oliva & Carvajal (1984)
Lobatostoma pacificum Manter, 1940	Trachinotus paitensis Cuvier, 1832 (Actinopterygii: Carangidae)	Ni	Intestine	Antofagasta (II)	Oliva & Luque (1989)
Lobatostoma sp.	Argopecten purpuratus (Lamarck, 1819) (Bivalvia: Pectinidae)	Me	Digestive gland	Caldera (III)	Oliva & Sánchez (2005)
Family Multicalycidae Gibson &amp; Chinabut, 1984
Genus Multicalyx Faust &amp; Tang, 1936
Multicalyx elegans (Olsson, 1869) Thoney & Burreson, 1988	Callorhinchus callorynchus (Linnaeus, 1758) (Holocephali, Callorhinchidae)	Ad	Gall bladder	off VIII region (VIII)	Fernández et al. (1986)
Subclass Digenea Carus, 1863
Order Diplostomida Olson et al., 2003
Family Aporocotylidae Odhner, 1912
Aporocotylidae gen. sp.	Mesodesma donacium (Lamarck, 1818) (Bivalvia: Mesodesmatidae)	Ce	Gills	Carelmapu (X)	López et al. (2014)
Genus Aporocotyle Odhner, 1900
Aporocotyle australis Fernández & Durán, 1985*	Merluccius australis (Hutton, 1872) (Actinopterygii: Merlucciidae)	Ad	Arterial cone, ventral aorta, branchial arteries	Huaflo Island (X), Off XI region, Costa Canal (XI), Off XII region, Ni (X†, XI)	Fernández & Durán (1985); George-Nascimento & Arancibia (1994); González & Carvajal (1994); Mackenzie & Longshaw (1995)†; Chávez et al. (2012)
Aporocotyle keli Villalba & Fernández, 1986*	Genypterus chilensis (Guichenot, 1848) (Actinopterygii: Ophidiidae)	Ad	Branchial arteries	Concón (V), Talcahuano, Lota (VIII)	Villalba & Fernández (1986a)
Aporocotyle kuri Villalba & Fernández, 1986*	Genypterus maculatus (Tschudi, 1846) (Actinopterygii: Ophidiidae)	Ad	Branchial arteries	Talcahuano (VIII)	Villalba & Fernández (1986a)
Aporocotyle wilhelmi Villalba & Fernández, 1986*	Merluccius gayi gayi (Guichenot, 1848) (Actinopterygii: Merlucciidae)	Ad	Heart, arterial cone, branchial blood vessels	Coquimbo (IV), San Antonio, Valparaíso (V), Concepción Bay, Talcahuano (VIII), Corral (XIV), Puerto Montt (X)	Villalba & Fernández (1986b); George-Nascimento (1996); Oliva & Ballón (2002)
Aporocotyle ymakara Villalba & Fernández, 1986*	Genypterus blacodes (Forster, 1801) (Actinopterygii: Ophidiidae)	Ad	Branchial arteries, arterial cone, heart	Arauco Gulf, Talcahuano (VIII)	Villalba & Fernández (1986a); Riff (1994)
Aporocotyle sp.	Gobiesox marmoratus Jenyns, 1842 (Actinopterygii: Gobiesocidae)	Ad	Ni	Burca (VIII)	Pardo-Gandarillas et al. (2004)
	Merluccius australis (Hutton, 1872) (Actinopterygii: Merlucciidae)	Ni	Arterial cone, aorta, blood vessels	Huaflo Island (X)	Fernández (1985)

Abbreviations and symbols: Eg= eggs; Me= metacercariae; pMe= progenetic metacercariae; Sp= sporocyst; Re= rediae; Ce= cercaria; Fu= furcocercous cercaria; Im= immature worms; La= Larvae; Ju= juvenile; Ad= adult; Ni= not indicated; Na= not apply; †Study published before the administrative division of the region without detailing a specific locality; *New species for science described in hosts from Chile. Comments: <sup>1</sup>Valdovinos & Balboa (2008) reported this parasite as Trichobilharzia sp. However, Pinto et al. (2014), despite recognizing those cercariae as an avian schistosome, dismissed the identification of the former authors; <sup>2</sup>Worms and eggs were found inside blood vessels at the histopathology of digestive tract; <sup>3</sup>It corresponds to an experimental infection of native snails with a laboratory-strain of S. mansoni; <sup>4</sup>Torres et al. (1988) recorded it as Stephanostomum sp. However, Torres et al. (1996) clarified that the correct identity of those metacercariae was Acanthostomoides apophalliformis; <sup>5</sup>Recorded as Derogenes patagonicus. However, Patricio Torres (personal communication) and Shimazu et al. (2000), who made a revision of material from the type host and type locality, stated the correct identification of this fluke was Deropegus patagonicus; <sup>6</sup>Although was cited as Stephanoprora denticulata by Torres et al. (1982, 1983, 1991, 1992a, 1993a), later Ostrowski de Núñez et al. (2004) did a revision of the material “S. denticulata”, an European species, and stated that those flukes really corresponded to the Neotropical species Stephanoprora uruguayense; <sup>7</sup>While these authors stated as “Adult stage” the isolated flukes from Fissurella mollusks, according to Bray (2002b), the correct stage of development from these mollusks would correspond to a progenetic metacercaria; <sup>8</sup>Oliva et al. (2010) suggest that findings of Proctoeces lintoni larvae stages in Perumytilus purpuratus (Loot et al., 2005; Aldana et al., 2009) are incorrect, and probably they correspond to a different species. Additionally, this mollusks act as the first intermediate host for Proctoeces sicyases according to Muñoz et al. (2013a, b) and Oliva et al. (2018); <sup>9</sup>Described as Proctoeces chilensis by Oliva (1984a), although according to Valdivia et al. (2010) it really corresponds to Proctoeces cf. lintoni, invalidating that species; <sup>10</sup>According to Muñoz et al. (2017), the flukes Lepidauchen sp. reported by Díaz & George-Nascimento (2002) and Flores & George-Nascimento (2009), and Megasolena sp. by Muñoz-Muga & Muñoz (2010), Muñoz & Delorme (2011) and Muñoz & Randhawa (2011), really corresponds to Megasolena littoralis; <sup>11</sup>Curran et al. (2018) stated, according to morphological description and molecular data, the synonymy of Saccocoeloides papernai originally described by Fernández (1987b) with Saccocoeloides overstreeti; <sup>12</sup>Andres et al. (2015) stated, according to morphological description and molecular data, that species Dicrogaster fastigatus and Dicrogaster fragilis, originally described by Fernández (1987b), really correspond to a new genus, Xiha; <sup>13</sup>Sample is deposited in a private collection with no data regard the locality of the specimen; <sup>14</sup>According to Muñoz et al. (2017), the flukes Digenaea sp. 1 isolated by Díaz & George-Nascimento (2002), and Lecitastheridae gen. sp. recorded by Flores & George-Nascimento (2009), Muñoz-Muga & Muñoz (2010), Muñoz & Delorme (2011) and Muñoz & Randhawa (2011) correspond to the species Monorchimacradena viridis; <sup>15</sup>Bay-Schmidt (1972) cited Lasiusurus borealis as the host, however, this is a wrong statement because this species correspond to a boreal bat, meanwhile Lasiusurus varius is the species distributed in Chile (Gardner & Handley Jr., 2007); <sup>16</sup>A revision of the material is needed considering this is a holarctic species (Kanev et al., 1994), and there are descriptions of other Catatropis species from the Neotropics; <sup>17</sup>The fluke Pirupalkia queulensis described by Puga & Figueiroa (1989) was synonymized with Villarrealina peruanus by Bray (2002a); <sup>18</sup>This fluke was isolated from imported cattle thus it probably corresponds to a non-native parasite; <sup>19</sup>Parasite cited by Muñoz et al. (2011) as Limatuloides limatulus, however, according to Lotz & Font (2008) genus Limatuloides is a synonymous of Parabascus; <sup>20</sup>Host cited as Dromiciops bozinovici, however, according to new molecular analysis this taxon is a synonymous of D. gliroides, keeping its status of monotypic species (Suárez-Villota et al., 2018); <sup>21</sup>Even though Szidat (1962) detailed “Patagonia” as the locality of sampling, according to Fernández et al. (2012), the original slides details “Valdivia, Chile” as the correct locality; <sup>22</sup>According to Olmos & Muñoz (2006) it would belong to Diplostomidae family (Order Diplostomida) but also it could be found in Schistosomatidae and Spirorchidae families (Order Plagiorchiida) (Schell, 1985); <sup>23</sup>Cercaria cited as “Megalora” although the correct name is “Megalura” (Schell, 1985). According to Olmos & George-Nascimento (1997) this cercaria would belong to Psilosomatidae family. However, according to Schell (1985) Megalura cercaria is found in Philophthalmidae family, meanwhile, Magnacauda cercaria and Zygocercous cercaria are found for Psilosomatidae family; <sup>24</sup>This type of cercaria is found in Notocotylidae, Nudacotylidae and Pronocephalidae families (Schell, 1985).
